

AZ POST
INTEGRITY BULLETIN
Volume No. 34

The Arizona Peace Officer Standards and Training Board (AZ POST) is mandated by the legislature to establish and enforce the physical, mental, and moral fitness standards for all peace officers in the state. The Board meets the charge to protect the public by overseeing the integrity of Arizona's law enforcement officers by reviewing cases and taking action against the certification of individuals who violate the AZ POST Rules. The following is a summary of some of the actions taken by the Arizona Peace Officer Standards and Training Board at its October and November 2007, public meetings. These actions are not precedent setting, in the sense that similar cases will end with the same result, because each case is considered on its individual facts and circumstances. Having said that, this Board publishes this bulletin to provide insight into the Board's position on various types of officer misconduct. As always, the Compliance Specialist for your agency is available to discuss any matter and to assist you with any questions you might have.

October and November 2007

ASSAULT

Officer A, while between law enforcement jobs, instigated a bar fight and assaulted several people. He was convicted of assault, a conviction he later had set aside. The Board revoked his peace officer certification for the commission of an offense involving physical violence.

CASE NO. 2

FAILING TO REPORT

During a six month period beginning when Officer B was in the academy, he participated in three alcohol related incidents, including bar fights and the accidental discharge of a firearm by his drunken fellow officer. He failed to report these incidents despite a clear agency directive requiring reports to be made. The Board suspended his certification for one year for malfeasance in office and conduct that tends to diminish public trust.

CASE NO. 3

ASSAULT

Officer C assaulted his brother and then assaulted a park ranger who responded to investigate the disturbance. The Board revoked his certification for committing an offense involving physical violence.

CASE NO. 4

FALSE INFO

Lieutenant D was driving an agency vehicle when he was involved in an accident. His daughter was riding as a passenger at the time, contrary to agency policy. He told the responding officer that he was alone in the vehicle. He also lied to his agency during the internal investigation and polygraph examination by stating he was the sole occupant of the vehicle. He later admitted that his daughter had been with him and he was embarrassed to admit it, because he had disciplined subordinates for the same policy violation. The Board revoked his certification for committing an offense involving dishonesty and malfeasance in office.

CASE NO. 5BUYING MARIJUANA

Applicant E, who had never been certified, admitted that during the three months prior to her application, she purchased marijuana for her future mother-in-law on two occasions. The Board found the purchases and transfers of marijuana to constitute the commission of class 3 felonies and suspended her eligibility to become certified for ten years.

CASE NO. 6ASSAULT and DISHONESTY

Officer F committed three separate assaults and gave false information to a police officer by stating he was a police officer after he had been fired and was no longer a police officer. The Board revoked his certification for committing offenses involving physical violence and dishonesty.

CASE NO. 7FIGHTING

Officer G engaged in a pattern of off-duty alcohol related altercations, including one in which he accidentally discharged his firearm. He indicated that he gets in verbal altercations with other bar patrons about 50-60% of the time when he goes out drinking. The Board revoked his certification for malfeasance in office and conduct that tends to disrupt, diminish or otherwise jeopardize public trust in the law enforcement profession.

CASE NO. 8ASSAULT and DISHONESTY

Officer H assaulted his wife and then lied to criminal and administrative investigators about the incident. The Board revoked his certification for committing offenses involving physical violence and dishonesty.

CASE NO. 9DISHONESTY

Officer I was untruthful to his immediate supervisor about the reason he rescheduled his Advanced Officer Training. Officer I told the Board he was afraid the supervisor would share his private information with others in the workplace. He also said he was "wiped out" after spending the evening explaining to his children why he and their mother were getting divorced. The supervisor would not accept "personal" as an answer to the question why, so Officer I lied to him and told him that the court had called and he needed to take care of something relating to the divorce. Officer I appeared before the Board and explained his actions, took full responsibility for them and made no attempt to justify them. The Board found mitigation and suspended his certification for one year from the date of his termination.

CASE NO. 10UNLAWFUL STOPS

Officer J had a pattern of pulling women over to engage them in social conversation aimed at getting them to date him. He repeated this conduct after being counseled to stop it by his Commander. The Board revoked his certification for malfeasance in office and conduct that tends to disrupt, diminish or otherwise jeopardize public trust in the profession.

The Board adopted consent agreements calling for a voluntary relinquishment in the following fact situation. The scenario stated here reflects the allegations giving rise to the POST case, but the facts were not proven before the Board.

- An officer submitted several claims for off-duty work that he had not performed.
- An officer accidentally struck and killed a person while driving under the influence on private property.
- An officer had sex on duty, misused ACJIS and committed other unprofessional conduct.
- An officer tested positive for cocaine after a traffic accident.
- An officer used steroids.
- An officer gave false information to criminal and administrative investigators.

The Board entered a mandatory revocation for a conviction of the following felonies:
None.

On October 17, 2007, and November 14, 2007, the Board voted to close out the following cases without initiating a Complaint for disciplinary action. This is neither a finding that no misconduct occurred nor a comment that the Board condones the conduct. In fact, the Board's rules are very broad and all misconduct violates one or more of the disciplinary rules. The Board may choose not to initiate a Complaint in a case even though there is misconduct if, considering all the circumstances, including agency discipline, the conduct does not rise to the level requiring a formal administrative proceeding. In many of these cases, the Board makes a statement that the conduct is an important consideration for a future hiring agency. By not taking disciplinary action, the Board leaves the determination of how serious the misconduct was to the discretion of an agency head who may choose to consider the officer for appointment. The Board relies on and enforces the statutory requirement of A.R.S. §41-1828.01 that agencies share information about misconduct with each other, even in cases where the Board has chosen not to take additional independent disciplinary action. Additionally, in some of these cases, further information is necessary before a charging decision can be properly made.

- An officer used an unauthorized method for counting commercial vehicles passing through a port of entry.
- An agency claimed an officer was untruthful about criticizing fellow officers to members of another department.
- A recruit provided incomplete information in his background investigation.
- An officer was involved in an altercation while intoxicated.
- An officer lived with a convicted felon contrary to agency policy.
- A sergeant made questionable charges to a DARE credit card, but always reimbursed the account. There was no policy on card use in place.
